Weekly Poll Notes:

Northwest Missouri State retains the top spot in the latest NABC/Division II regular season rankings as the top three teams in the first poll held their positions. The Bearcats had their only scheduled game last week – against a Missouri Western team now in the top 25 at No. 19 – postponed and will resume play on the final day of the calendar year.

No. 2-ranked Lincoln Memorial also had a game postponed against Queens (N.C.), but picked up a game and a win over a top 25 team by beating then-No. 11 Alabama Huntsville Sunday to improve to 3-0. Meanwhile, No. 3 West Texas A&M was unable to open its season as scheduled and will now begin Wednesday when it hosts Texas A&M-Commerce in a non-conference tilt.

Last week, the President's Council in the Sunshine State Conference announced that its institutions will not begin their basketball seasons until at least Feb. 15 and not take part in the NCAA Division II Tournament. As a result, all of the SSC schools will not be included in the rankings for the balance of the 2020-21 season. Last week's poll had Florida Southern and Nova Southeastern ranked in the fourth and fifth spots, respectively.

As a result, West Liberty – who begins its season on Jan. 7 – moved up to fourth and Colorado School of Mines, who is off to a 4-0 start, is at No. 5.

Besides Missouri Western, Mercyhurst joins the rankings for the first time at No. 21 after posting a pair of impressive wins over then-No. 12 Ferris State over the weekend. Missouri-St. Louis, who was ranked in the pre-season top 25 but fell out after a loss to Truman State, returns to the poll following a road victory on Saturday over Rockhurst.

A total of nine conferences have multiple teams in the pre-season top 25 and three of them – the Mid-America Intercollegiate Athletics Association, Mountain East Conference and Northern Sun Intercollegiate Conference – have three representatives apiece.
